

WELCOME BACK, GRADUATES OF OLD MCGILL!

Reunion Program Today Includes Golf Matches Luncheon And Smoker

Many Entertainers For Function In Black Watch Armoury Tonight—Sir Arthur Currie Will Speak—Three Golf Clubs Extend Privileges To Graduates—Women Graduates Will See Play By English Department—Exhibits Arranged For Medical And Dental Graduates—Many Old Alumni Here.

Although the first day of the Quinquennial Reunion of McGill Graduates was given over mainly to registration at the Mount Royal Hotel, some of the graduates found time to revisit the old college buildings once again. Yesterday afternoon the decoration of the War Memorial Tablet, Tomb of James McGill, the Bust of Sir William Macdonald took place.

The Third Quinquennial Reunion will really start today with the Convocation ceremonies. This gathering at Loew's Theatre this morning will be followed by a luncheon in the Piazza of the Mount Royal Hotel. Arrangements have been made where the playing facilities of the Royal Montreal, Beaconsfield, and Marlborough Golf Clubs will be extended on Thursday and Friday to the McGill alumni. Following the afternoon activities there will be a soccer game played at seven-thirty at the Molson Stadium between the McGill team and that of the Royal Victoria Hospital.

Smoker to Be Held in Armory

One of the outstanding events will be the Reunion Smoker which will be held at the Black Watch Armoury this evening at 8.30. This is the first social event of the program arranged for the McGill Graduates. A concert will be given and between the musical numbers refreshments will be served. It is hoped that the alumni will make full use of the opportunity to renew friendships of former days. Sir Arthur Currie will deliver an address to the guests to familiarize the returning graduates with the activities of the University to-day.

Entertainment will be varied, including boxing bouts, fencing and wrestling. In addition an item by Jimmy Rice is scheduled, while De La Fere will display his magic skill and Perenna and Thorpe will give a piano act. The McGill Band will also assist in the evening's entertainment.

Entertainment for Women

For women graduates a special meeting of the alumnae society has been planned to take place this evening at eight-thirty in Moyse Hall. A photograph of Miss Hurlbutt, second (Continued on Page Four)

Arts Society Will Give Tea Dances

Functions To Be Held In Union After Games

Following their long-established policy of being at least two jumps ahead of other campus organizations, the Arts Undergraduate Society plan another innovation to McGill activities in the form of tea-dances to be held in the Union hall after every McGill football game. These dances will be a decided acquisition to the usual run of undergraduate activities, supplying as they will popular entertainment at a reasonable price. The idea has been germinating in the minds of many ever since last year when the McGill football team were the guests of the University of Western Ontario at an event similar to those which the Arts Undergraduate Society plan. It needed only the inventive genius of the Arts undergrads to bring it to the bloom.

First Dance Saturday

The first of these tea-dances will be held on Saturday following immediately after the McGill-Varsity football game. A popular campus orchestra has been engaged by the committee and arrangements have been made by the Union house committee to provide refreshments for the nominal price of fifty cents a couple. The dance will cost another half dollar so that the entire cost will only amount to one dollar a couple, or about a third (Continued on Page Two)

Enthusiasm Reigns Supreme In Union At Annual Smoker

Sir Arthur Currie and Shag Shaughnessy Address Freshmen

FREE SMOKES

Cheerleaders Rehearse Crowd In McGill Yells—Society Executives Heard

"Co-operation, participation, and enthusiasm, but the greatest of these is enthusiasm," declared Coach Bobby Bell last night. This was the theme of the Annual Freshman Smoker held in the Union Ballroom. The Freshmen present were repeatedly urged to take whole-hearted participation in college activities by Sir Arthur Currie and other prominent personalities on the campus, in animating speeches.

The meeting was opened by the singing of the "Alma Mater", after which the objects of the Smoker were outlined by the chairman, Gordon King, President of the Union. He stated that the various activities of the college would be explained to the Freshmen in order to aid them in making their choices. Emphasis was laid on the fact that this year the Smoker was entirely a McGill affair.

Activities Outlined

Coach Bobby Bell first inspired the smokers with enthusiasm, urging them to get into things at the beginning. He also pointed out that the old Physics law "You can only get out of a thing as much as you put into it" applied to college life.

The Red and White Revue was described as "an organized effort to put before the public an amateur show" by Bruce Ross, producer of this year's show. In this connection two of last year's skits were put on as an introduction of the Revue to the Freshmen. Bill Sellar entertained the audience with the comic song "College Girl", while Sol Bazar sang a hilarious skit "Dark Laughter".

"Never let studies interfere with your regular college course", were the sentiments laid down by Major Forbes amid thundering applause by the Freshmen.

The Inimitable Max Ford extended a hearty welcome to all to turn out for the Choral and Operatic Society, of which he is president. He followed his remarks by two short "Items".

Graduate Society Elects Officers

Council and Montreal Branch Present Annual Reports

The election of new officers and the presentation of annual reports occupied the greater part of the time at the meetings of the Council of the McGill Graduates' Society and the Montreal Branch of the Society held in the Arts Building last night.

Despite a falling off in the number of members a progressive year was shown in the reports read by Mr. Glasco, Secretary of the Society. Mr. Glasco stressed the importance of the Graduates' Society as a means of bringing former McGill men into closer touch with the University.

The following officers were elected by the Council: Second Vice-President, Mr. G. G. Gale; Honorary Secretary, Dr. L. H. McKim; Honorary Treasurer, Mr. W. A. Merrill; Executive Committee, Dr. L. C. Montgomery and J. de G. Beaulieu.

The Montreal Branch elected: Vice-President, Dr. D. Schlar Lewis; Honorary Secretary, Mr. H. B. McLean; Executive Council, Miss E. E. Abbott, Mr. J. C. McDougall, Mr. R. E. Powell, Major D. S. Forbes and Mr. A. T. Durnford.

New Members Desired To Join In Club's Activities

FIRST MEETING HELD

Practices For Instructing Beginners In Signal Code Start Next Week

The McGill Radio Association conducted its opening meeting yesterday at 5 o'clock, in room 35 of the Engineering building. Ross Smythe presided, while John Grant acted as Secretary.

Last year, the club conducted Station VE-2CP, and as a free service to the student body, transmitted over 200 messages to all parts of the world. The club intends to continue this service, and once again the McGill Students will be able to send messages to relatives and friends in distant parts.

Code To Be Taught

Students interested in any or all phases of radio will be extended a cordial welcome by the association. In order to fully benefit from the code practices, intending members should report by next Monday, at 5 at the club's radio station on the second floor of the Engineering building. These code practices are held on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, at 5 in order to instruct beginners in the principles of radio reception and transmission, and to aid them in securing a government license. When this has been obtained, the new member takes his turn with the others in sending messages.

Professor Waugh Defends Quebec's Teaching System

Criticizes Dr. Leacock's Attitude On Education

SPEAKS AT LUNCHEON

Graduates Of McGill Should Have A Zeal For The Truth

"We shall do our best to produce leaders in engineering, law, medicine, and architecture, but above all we shall try to produce men with a zeal for truth and men equipped to face all that life shall give them—good or evil". Said Professor Waugh, yesterday at the weekly luncheon of the Rotary Club, held at the Windsor Hotel.

Professor Waugh spoke on "McGill University Reunion", before a crowded hall. He also took Professor Leacock severely to task for his disparaging remarks on the system of Protestant Education in this province and on some aspects of the work of McGill, which he had uttered some time last week.

Rate Interrupt Arts

In his speech, Professor Waugh said a few words on the impression most people had of college professors. The Graduate reunion is the proper time for reminiscences. He had only been here for 10 years, but had heard of many tales of by-gone days. The faculty of Arts might have been called, at one time, the faculty of rats, since its activities were so much interrupted by those beasts. Many years ago, the program of the faculty of Medicine depended on the ability of the body-snatchers, and one student protested bitterly at being asked to dissect his own uncle.

50 years ago, McGill defeated Varsity in a football game, when the crowd surged on the field and, lost in the mob, a McGill man scored. Yes, it must have been 50 years ago. One of his colleagues, a professor, was found on his hands and knees beside a policeman, looking for lost goldfish. There are better stories from actual graduates. He is thinking more of McGill as she is and not as she was. The staff is delighted to see many graduates back.

Dr. Leacock Criticized

Dr. Leacock has been saying harsh things about McGill and Protestant education in this province. Professor Waugh is in agreement with him as to the necessity of a twelfth grade in High School, but would be grieved if the belief got about that the staff were (Continued on Page Two)

Annual Conversat Set For Thursday

S.C.A. To Be Host To Freshmen and Freshettes

An event of utmost importance to freshmen is the annual Conversat which is scheduled for Thursday evening next. All freshmen and freshettes will be cordially welcomed at this function.

The Conversat, famous social function is an event especially designed to bring freshmen and freshettes together. It has the general programme of an ordinary dance, except that it is composed entirely of sitting out numbers. Any boy is permitted to ask a girl for a "conversat", and thereupon proceeds to improve the acquaintance in the ten minute conversat period. Refreshments will be served.

Freshman Supper

The freshman supper, lapsed during the last two years, is being held again and affords an excellent opportunity for new comers to become acquainted with other freshmen and with upper classmen. The banquet is given by the S.C.A. and includes speeches from several of the local campus celebrities.

Admission to be Charged

An admission fee of 25 cents for every freshman and 50 cents for every upper classman will be charged this year for the Conversat.

Nominations Called For Commercial Society

Nominations are hereby called for the representative to the Commercial Society Executive from Second Year. Nomination sheets must be signed by at least ten Commerce students and handed into Bill Gentlemen on or before Monday Oct. 10th.

Four Honorary Degrees Being Conferred Today At Special Convocation

Ceremony To Take Place At Loew's Theatre At Ten O'clock — Premier R. B. Bennett, Francis W. MacLennan, Hon. Alexander C. Rutherford, Dr. W. Harvey-Smith Will Receive Honorary LL. D. — Parade To From In Front Of Arts Building — Tablet Will Be Unveiled To Late Dean A. W. Thornton.

The Program is now complete for the Special Convocation which will take place this morning at 10 o'clock at Loew's Theatre, when Premier R. B. Bennett, Francis W. MacLennan, the Hon. Alexander C. Rutherford, and Dr. W. Harvey-Smith will receive honorary LL. D. degrees. This Special Convocation is the opening event of the Third Quinquennial Reunion of McGill graduates and past students, and a large audience is expected as, in addition to the graduates many students will attend as a half holiday has been granted them for this purpose.

Sir Arthur Currie will meet the Right Honourable R. B. Bennett on his arrival in Montreal this morning from New York, where last night he addressed the New York Canadian Club. They will go directly to the former's home and there the four distinguished Canadians who will receive an honorary degree later in the day will breakfast with Sir Arthur.

Band to Lead Parade

The Band and the Scarlet Key will meet them there and escort them to the Arts Building, where they will enter the Council Room and don their robes. The procession will form from the Library to the Arts Building and will be headed by the McGill Band. The members of the Scarlet Key will follow them, then the undergraduates, and finally the graduates, and members of the faculty. The recipients of honorary degrees will watch the parade file past the steps of the Arts Building and will then join in behind.

It has been a long while since McGill students have had such an opportunity to exhibit the gaiety of college spirit. There are many here who will remember the demonstration on the occasion when Premier Ramsay MacDonald received his LL. D. degree two years ago. That day over five hundred students took part, doing a snake dance, cheering, singing, and in general displaying themselves in a way seldom seen at staid old McGill. The authorities have intimated that they would like to see an equally enthusiastic display to-day.

Four Distinguished Men

Those receiving honorary degrees are all McGill graduates with the exception of Premier Bennett. E. W. Beatty, K.C. Chancellor of the University will be in the chair. The Prime Minister, the Right Honourable R. B. Bennett will be introduced by Sir Arthur Currie. Francis W. MacLennan, the distinguished Mining Engineer will be presented by Dean Ernest Brown (Continued on Page Four)

Newman Club Will Hold First Dance

Popular Informal Parties To Be Resumed

The curtain raiser of the informal dance season will be staged by the Newman Club this evening at 8.30 in the Auditorium of Congress Hall. This is located at 454 Dorchester St. W. just east of Phillips Square. These "ice breakers" have established an enviable record in social activities at McGill. The two held last year were pronounced first-rate by the club members and this year's committee have spared no effort to maintain the high standard of entertainment. Refreshments will be served by the Newman Club as rendered by a well known musical unit.

All Members Welcome

A general invitation is extended to all members and their friends. Formal introductions will be taboo, the bowing and handshaking to be handled by a special committee skilled in diplomatic relations. "Strangers" will be just another word in the dictionary to those present after the evening has passed. In view of these preparations, the Newman Informal will strongly for the Wednesday evening social engagement.

In keeping with the keynote of reduced rate for entertainment, the price of admission has been set at fifty cents. Refreshments will be served in the course of the evening. Tickets are available from Denis Coolican, H. Price, J. Hogan, and K. Hingston or at the door.

Basil Maine Plays Mechanized Music

Eminent English Authority Is Speaker At Conservatorium

VISITING CANADA

Famous Critic States That Music Is An Aristocratic Culture

"Music is essentially an aristocratic culture, for those who by their instinct and temperament can interpret it. To-day there are too many who profess themselves as capable performers." These were among the opening words by Mr. Basil Maine, music critic of the London Morning Post in an address on "Some of the Effects of Mechanized Music" last night in the Conservatorium Hall.

Mr. Maine, a fair-haired man in his early thirties, with a very prepossessing appearance, tried to show that modern scientific advances in musical reproduction were drowning the personality of the virtuoso, and that they would eventually demand a specialized type of composition.

Modern Music Commercialized

"A virtuoso" Mr. Maine explained "serves to remind of the magic of performance." It was the personality of the artist as well as his dexterity that drew his audiences in the early days. Now that one can have them perform at will through the gramophone record, their technique alone becomes recognizable to us. The virtuoso moreover has not the power to object to this procedure, for should he refuse to have his playing recorded or transmitted, he can make little headway in a world that has the dollar bill as the measure of value.

Gramophone Companies Blamed

Taking the gramophone companies as an example, Mr. Maine showed that for all their claims to the perfection of reality in recorded music, their real aim is the greater dividends to their shareholders by these advancements. The speaker also believed that reality should not be striven for, but rather that quality which will best interpret the music through the particular machine listened to.

Regarding robot music in its present light the critic declared that it would inevitably turn upon the virtuoso and crush him. Viewing Mechanical reproducers as new instruments, composers and virtuosos could by intensive instrumentation use them to their own advantage. The law in such cases is that the instrument imposes the conditions upon the music, and never vice versa.

Vocal music is coming into its own once again, claimed Mr. Maine. This is because the human voice is better adapted to carrying personality through mechanical reproduction than the available musical instruments.

Operatic And Choral Society

Owing to the fact that the Conversat will be held on Thursday evening there will be no meeting of the Operatic and Choral Society. There will be an important Executive Meeting, however, that evening at 8.00 in the Music Room of the Union. All members of the Executive are requested to be there on time.

Stranded Students

It has become an annual custom for those who have survived several years in a university to tell the newcomers what to do. Year in and year out undergraduate publications sound their notes of encouragement and advice, professors sound their notes of warning and club executives send forth their notes of appeal for new members. As a result various freshmen turn out for varied activities and as they gain in experience take over offices hold executive positions and generally help to carry on the traditions of an active student body.

The freshmen who thus turn out for activities furnish no problem. They gradually take their places in the various campus groups and take a healthy and active interest in their extra-curricular activities. The people who do furnish a problem are the sophomores and juniors—and perhaps even a few seniors—who would like to turn out for activities but who haven't the moral courage. As freshmen these people did not turn out. Perhaps they wanted to settle down and find out what it was all about first—or they may have wished to avoid the general stampede for college activities and join up at their leisure. After the first few months they let the thing slide and then found that examinations occupied their time until the second year.

Now and then some upperclassman does turn out for an activity to which he was previously a stranger but in the majority of cases he does not. For one thing he does not wish to compete with freshmen or even work on an equal footing with them. If he does come to meetings or rehearsals or practices or whatever they may be he naturally gravitates to the older members who are his classmates. Instead of doing some work and taking an active interest in things he becomes a mere hanger-on who knows everyone of any consequence but never amounts to anything himself.

And it is here that we wish to make our main point. In the interests of these people—and they certainly comprise a very large group—the various classes should concentrate more on intra-class functions. Class dinners, class debates, class socials and other such events should provide an outlet to the energy of these hangers-on. Such activities, of course, always go on but they should be stressed more than they are both as a source of present good and also of future relationship with the university since it is to his class that the graduate usually returns at reunions.

We are not preaching decentralization but we would like to see more class functions. After all they provide the most entertainment for the greatest money—and what is more—they cost least; a tremendous factor in this year of depression.

Settling Down

At last they know where Strathcona Hall is, to them the Union is familiar ground; they could even find the Biological Building given five minutes. In short the Freshmen have settled down.

No longer do the newcomers wander helplessly about the Campus, or scurry with worried looks from dean to professors. Lectures are well under way in all faculties and even the English 2 class has recovered from the shock of seeing the first of the four prescribed reading lists.

There is such a vast difference between College and School life, that it is complimentary to the incoming class that they should settle down in less than two weeks. During the first few days at the University excitement and uncertainty held sway, but now calmness and placidity are apparent.

The change is evident not only in the lecture rooms, but also in the corridors and on the Campus. Gone are the green Freshmen, gone the goggle-eyed Freshettes and the all-knowing upper classmen. No longer does the student examine every approaching figure with interest and appraisal.

Whether the interests of the students have been directed towards their studies, or have diverged into the channels of amusement afforded by the many college clubs, is an uncertain question. However, no matter what the answer may be, it once more appears that the students of good old staid McGill bask in the peace and serenity of a settled college existence.

THE BARMAID TAVERN

Having duly thanked the Almighty and His host for all the beneficence accorded me during the past year, I now proceed to revenge myself upon the Feature Department, in regular weekly intervals. The column will (I hope) appear every Wednesday, hereafter. It will consist of short pieces in prose and, if a person adept enough can be found, also in verse. The subject treated will range from ankles to the Libido and from monozygotic twins to the Zentralbehelzstelle, fur Berlin-Dahlem.

There will be a department for matters literary and artistic and it will be prominently labelled so that it may be skipped without any loss of time or undue energy.

Any able-bodied member of this University without distinction of race, colour, sex, creed or gastric disturbances may contribute short articles on any interesting topic. The Editor reserves the right to reject some or all of the submitted masterpieces without going into details about them. Contributions should be left on the letter-rack in the "Daily" office addressed to "The Barmaid Tavern" for "R.L." They should be typewritten or at least in ink, and not on the back of violet envelopes or visiting cards.

The essential requirements are: a sense of humour and of words and a deep appreciation of the lower forms of life.

LITTERARIA!

The younger novelists may be divided in these years of Grace, into two groups. One, domiciled in and around Paris and Munich and under the azure skies of the Provence, spasmodically publishes forty or more pages of more or less (generally less) coherent narrative in a transitional journal and calls it "Fragment From Work In Progress". (Joyce ought to have applied for a copyright). The other group are busy exhuming interesting personages of the Past.

Thanks to the brilliant work of Feuchtwanger, Neumann et al. the Germans are now preeminent in the field of the historical novel. Who has not read "Power" or at least seen the film version of "The Patriot"? Scarcely known however outside his own country is the work of Klabund a German writer who died a few years ago in his early thirties. His "collected novels" comprise one volume of four short novels dealing with the lives of four men important in the history of the world.

His method of presentation is highly original and effective. Instead of the painstakingly detailed description of custom and atmosphere which go to make up the setting for the central figure, Klabund uses a few impressionistic and luminously suggestive passages which are powerful enough to delineate the epoch in an unmistakable manner.

The character of the dominant figure is revealed in short, brilliantly picked out incidents taken both from authenticated sources and legends. For Klabund does not try to debunk the historical personage he is treating. He aims at an artistic portrait rather than a photochrome. The result is generally achieved in a masterly fashion.

Klabund possesses in addition an extremely pliable style which is an essential part of his portrayal of character. In "Mohamet" the style suggests the East in all its colour and ardour. In "Peter the Great" the sentences are short and clipped, with passages reminiscent of the Old Testament.

As far as I know only one of his novels has been translated into English. This is Peter the Czar. The translation however, is extremely well done and very little of the original flavor is lost.

EJACULATIONS

And pants for the best pants the pant market grants.

HOFFENSTEIN

One of the best pieces of humour to come out of Soviet Russia in a long time is the following story:

An old Jew, who had been a peddler during life, was after his demise transported by the Angel of Death to the portals of Heaven. Old Samuel, as usual, carried his professional sack with him. On the path leading up to the pearly gates he met Comrade Lenin who had left this vale of tears some years before. Vladimir Ilyitch was disconsolate. It seems that not having been born a Jew, the All powerful Commissar could not enter the abode of the Righteous and so had to wander through all Eternity in the region between Heaven and Hell. Old Samuel took pity on him and promised to get him past the heavenly porter. The peddler told Lenin to crawl into the sack and to keep quiet. He then shouldered his Red burden and gave his credentials to the admitting officer. When questioned about the contents of the sack he naively asked the Angel in charge of records:

"Do you have, by any chance, an individual here by the name of Karl Marx?"

The records were searched and the presence of the author of "Das Kapital" was verified. On hearing this Samuel threw the sack over the wall saying:

"Well, this is his baggage."

This week's Piffle.
"Economically and otherwise Canada holds the best position in the troubled world today."

Racey in the Montreal Star.
I wonder what he means by otherwise.

The Forward Pass

As Interpreted By Barony

Assuming, gentle reader, that you are of normal intelligence, I will not spoil the contents of this delectable treatise with details of a sport so National in character as to be called Canadian Football.

You are all as familiar with the complicated and intricate rules and regulations of this game as I am. But like everything else, our football is being influenced by foreign interests.

Recently (within the last 600 years) the official powers that stand supreme at the HELMET of Canadian Rugby decreed that the popular American Forward Pass was henceforth incorporated in our rules. The Pass is new to me. Therefore it is new to you. Add what is new to you must be explained; so I propose to do this myself.

No, dear reader, this Forward Pass is not to be confused with any Geographical Gorge hidden away somewhere in a range of unknown mountains. It is no freak of Nature. We already have enough of those. Some people will immediately take it for granted that because the 'Kicking Horse Pass' and the 'Forward Pass' both have the same family name they are related. Verily, I declare, this is not the case.

It is indeed disgraceful that in times when Universal Peace is fervently desired, so much stress should be publicly laid upon the new Forward Pass. This Forward Pass is entirely a North American institution and understood only by Americans and myself. So who among us will be the first to stand up and blame a 'belligerent foreigner' for interpreting 'Forward Pass' as a military command? Europeans haven't so easily forgotten that when their country echoed the thunder of war and oozed blood, the Americans launched a successful campaign with 'Forward March' as their slogan. To foreigners 'Forward March' meant battle. It still does. Notice that where we confuse the family name of 'Pass' as already pointed out, foreigners connect the first or familiar name of 'Forward' with the same thought.

With the advent of the Forward Pass the papers have been filled with a hue and cry that has startled Europeans, especially their Communist neighbours. They are arming themselves and refuse to listen to Disarmament plans. There is one of two things we can do to remedy this misunderstanding. Either forget the Forward Pass, or else rename it.

To allay any foreign suspicion I would suggest the name "Catch-as-catch-can Toss". With emphasis on the free for all result. But this name is open for criticism. For instance, considering the rough and tumble aspect of the Pass, we might call it the "SLEEPING CAR LURCH or PITCH".

Then again, I object strenuously, in the interests of the younger generation, to the word "pass" appearing in the name of the play. It reminds one too forcibly of the story about the lad who started on a shoe string and worked up until the young Lady took a PASS at him.

I think it is high time North Americans realized the impending peril and this article is intended to be a FIERY CROSS.

Hand it on, comrades, and be ye warned!

College Comment

ACCORDING TO A HUMORIST

"Keep out of politics, shun wealth, court obscurity"—such was the advice recently given seniors of McGill University by Stephen Leacock, noted humorist and chairman of the Department of Economics and Political Science at that school. The bulk of his address was of a flippant nature. Accordingly, we have reason to hope that the excerpt quoted was likewise given in a spirit of levity.

If meant seriously, it cannot help but impress one as being just a little bit paradoxical, inasmuch as the speaker does not bear the reputation of having assiduously sought seclusion and the comforts of "obscurity." Moreover, it is inconsistent with the utterances of another famous subject of King George—George Bernard Shaw. It may be recalled that "G. B." stated, not long ago, that the most encouraging aspect of the younger generation of Americans is their ambition for wealth.

However meant by Dr. Leacock, his admonition would be accepted as sound by those who disdain gold, power and material benefits. We hazard the opinion that it was not regarded seriously by the very ones to whom it was pointed.

Our civilization may contain much of which is sham and tinsel. Yet, in this busy and constantly expanding world, the intelligent and ambitious student cannot be expected to forego all the opportunities which are his for securing prominence and leadership. There are too many things to be done.

Simplicity is a virtue often and unfortunately underestimated. Nevertheless, progress would be materially lessened if the more capable and aggressive were forced to remain with the mediocre. This we say without necessarily subscribing to Nietzsche's concept of the Superman. The problem is not how to eliminate the leadership of the few; rather, it is one of discovering how this leadership may be directed toward the best ends of society at large.

—Syracuse Daily Orange.

It is difficult for us to realize that notwithstanding the horrors of the World War and that Germany and other enemy powers have been compulsoarily disarmed, notwithstanding the League of Nations, the Permanent Court of International Justice, the Locarno Treaties and the Briand-Kellogg Peace Pact, the Associated Powers are spending substantially larger sums on armaments today than in 1913. Competition in armaments is such a real menace to World Peace and imposes such a serious burden upon the peoples of the world that a return to stable conditions and normal prosperity will be difficult, if not impossible, until this menace is removed.

disposed to blame the teachers or the schools for the defects of the Quebec system. He is filled with admiration when he sees the loyalty, devotion, and zeal with which the teachers perform their arduous and exacting tasks with slight recognition and scant reward.

As for the products of the schools of the two provinces, he has encountered scores of freshmen in the past 10 years and has failed to observe any marked difference between those of Ontario and Quebec. Professor Leacock encounters few, if any, freshmen, because Economics is not a first year subject.

Standards Should be Raised

Professor Waugh and many others are more concerned with trying to raise the standards of studies at the University, especially in the Faculty of Arts. Every University must do this or perish. "Only lately have we regarded Professor Leacock as a supporter in our efforts. For five years ago, Professor Leacock criticized me for implying that the Faculty of Arts might be improved. Now, we welcome him as a strong recruit to our cause. He is a senior member of the faculty, his staff is larger than any other and he has enjoyed a unique opportunity to influence, and even to determine, the standards in the faculty. Now, at a ripe age, he reaches the conclusion that the standards need improvement and we who have been advocates of the same thing are naturally pleased.

When with the zeal of a convert, he states his views somewhat extravagantly, we listen with indulgence. When he exalts his alma mater, Toronto University, we forego the right of recrimination. When a man says his mother is the best woman in the world, we think the better of him for it, though we do not necessarily accept his estimate."

Professor Waugh then pointed out the growth of the Graduate School in recent years, showing that McGill has not lost its reputation. McGill can hold its own with any Canadian or American University. The graduates have nothing to be ashamed of—not even a blue and white sweater. The right of free speech is not frowned on here as at some other universities.

McGill Duties

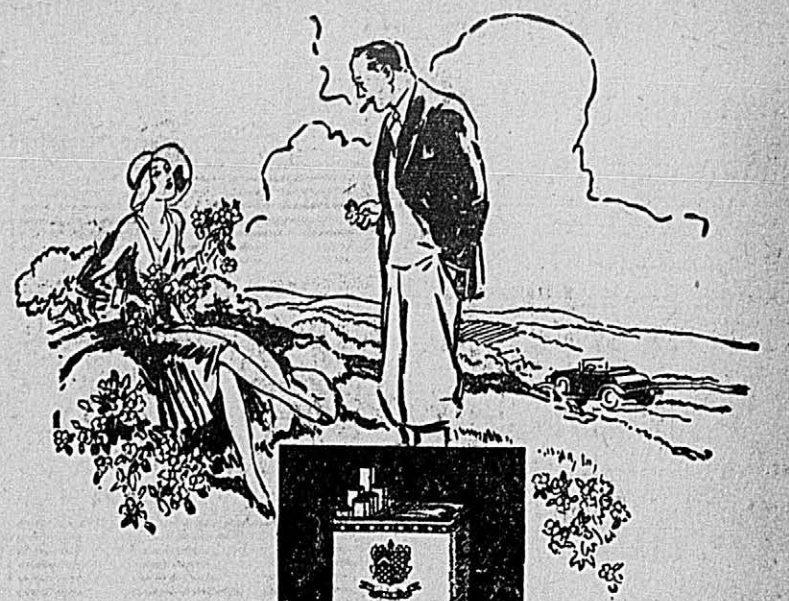

Professor Waugh then stated that McGill will not only turn out leaders of the various professions, but men desirous of truth. She aims to have her graduates clad in the armour of philosophy. If McGill can make its graduates retain their enthusiasm for learning, sport or art and infuse this into others, she will have accomplished such an achievement that all her minor faults will fade into insignificance. "We want your sympathy and support. Help us anyway you can." Professor Waugh closed, appealing to the graduates.

of what a similar session would cost at any of the city hotels.

Tickets will not be sold as the executive feel that paying at the gate is by far the best method of attending to the matter of payment. Arrangements are being made under the supervision of Bill Sellar, President of the Society, and his general executive, Dean Cornell, Mel Dolg, and Bill Tait, who report that the students are receiving the suggestion in a favourable manner. The idea should prove highly popular and will solve the problem of a fitting means of celebrating the result of the football game. The dances will also give McGill graduates an opportunity of seeing the student body having a good time as well as taking part themselves in an event which will remind them strongly of their own undergraduate days at the university.

Shaughnessy Signs Contract To Act As Manager "Royals"

McGill Coach Resumes Extended Baseball Career With Local Team

STARTED IN 1905

Obtained First Experience With Washington Senators

"SHAG" SHAUGHNESSY, popular coach of the McGill Rugby team has signed a contract to act as business manager of the Montreal "Royals" it was revealed last night. The contract is for a year and is sure to be a popular one as Shaughnessy not only knows his baseball from the ground up but is well known and highly esteemed in Montreal.

Ever since he hit the majors in 1905 the McGill mentor has made his presence felt in the baseball world and he has filled many important playing and managerial posts.

Starting locally Shag continued his interest in baseball when he went to Notre Dame and while there he started to play for the Washington "Senators." During the next two years he played semi-pro ball in the New England leagues and in 1908 he returned to the majors in Connie Mack's Athletics.

Started Managing.

For the next four years he managed minor league teams in the States and then returned to Canada where he undertook the management of the Ottawa team of the Canadian League. In three years he brought the same number of pennants to this team.

From 1914-18 Shag was overseas in the Canadian forces but after demobilisation in 1920 he returned to baseball as the manager of the Hamilton team in the Michigan-Ontario league. Thence he went to Syracuse in the International league and he managed that team for five years with marked success.

Syracuse at that time was acting mainly as a farm for Cardinals and his failure to win a pennant during this time may be attributed to the constant withdrawal of his best players. During this time he is credited with having developed a number of outstanding players among whom may be mentioned Thewnow, Bell, Bottomley, Hayfey, Adams and Rhem.

Went to Detroit.

Shag next went to Detroit "Tigers" where he remained two years as coach and scout. During this time he undertook for a while, with marked success, the management of the team.

Besides his experience in baseball his ability as a rugby coach has been demonstrated to McGill and Montreal in past years. It may be mentioned that it was he who introduced the lateral pass to the United States from Canada and that he is now demonstrating the American forward pass to Canadian footballers.

TENNIS NOTES

THE tennis team leave for Kingston today via C.N.R. where they will defend their intercollegiate title. Bob Murray, McGill's newly crowned tennis champion, is number 1 player, Captain Ross Wilson is number two, Laird Watt is third, and "Fin" McMartin, fourth. Stewart Ebbitt, manager and substitute for the team, will also go along, with Ken Farmer, who will play on the second doubles entry.

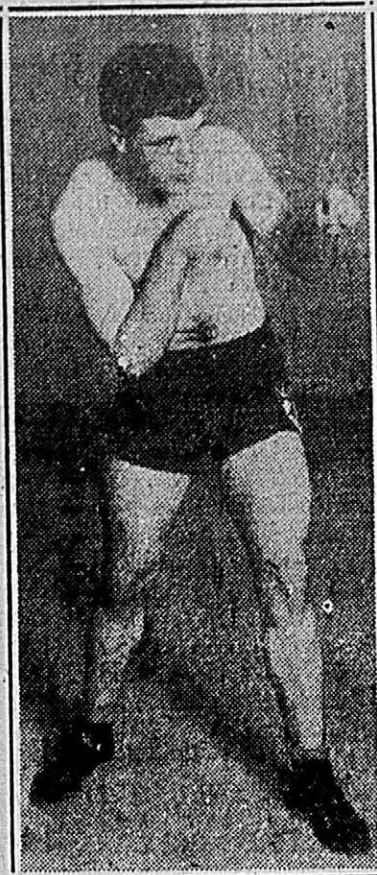

With exceptionally strong entries received from University of Montreal, and the possibility of Osgoode Hall being represented by Walter Martin and Leo Hill, Captain Wilson knows that his team will have to be right on their toes to hold on to the trophy.

Wilson and Watt will form the first string doubles team, while McMartin and Farmer will be the second entry. These combinations were evolved after several days' trial matches. The teams are the guests of R.M.C. who have been working on the courts since last spring to get them in shape for the event. Captain Joe Cornish of the cadets has also expressed an opinion that his team will be stronger than the one of last year. Three days of fine tennis is being looked forward to by all the members of the team.

Poloists Wanted

A call is hereby issued for men interested in playing water polo this year. Practices are held on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays at 5:30 p.m., at the Knights of Columbus swimming pool on Mountain Street. As the first game of the season takes place on October 22, an immediate response to this call is requested.

Out For Season

ROGER WILSON, former intercollegiate Boxing Champion and middle on this year's Senior Rugby team, who will be out of Football for the rest of the season due to torn ligaments resulting from the game with Western on Saturday.

Boxer's Practice Shows New Talent

Jack Ewen Wins With Injured Eye

OLD MEN RETURN

LAST night at five o'clock Coach Bert Light sent his enlarged boxing squad through a stiff workout at the High School gym. Several new men were in evidence and seemed to be shaping well. All indications point to the development of a strong and well balanced boxing team for this year's Intercollegiate Assault at Kingston in February.

Jack Ewen, McGill welterweight, who last night took a decision from Praas of the Verdun Boxing Club at Verdun, received a cut over his left eye in the first round, but went on to win handily. He may not appear on the bill at the Graduate Smoker tonight at the Black Watch Armory however, depending on the doctor's verdict.

Paul Sampson last year's 118 pound member of the intercollegiate team went through a light workout in preparation for his appearance at the same smoker. Sammy showed all his old speed and craft; his example was of benefit to some of the newer members of the class.

There were nearly twenty men out yesterday, a considerable advance over the previous practices. Coach Bert Light confidently expects the usual considerable increase in his squad when the outdoor sports finish. Roger Wilson, commonly known as the "Baby Elephant," Tam Fyhe the cotton haired outside wing of the senior rugby team, and Ian Matheson, light heavyweight, may be expected when football ends. Bert is also awaiting the appearance of Turnbull who may develop into a promising light heavy.

Bud Porteous, last year's captain of the boxing team and former intercollegiate welterweight champion arrived and worked out with the boys. Although not entering active competition this year he announced his intention of turning out to serve as sparring partner for those trying for a place on the team. Bro Velich, last years 160 pounder, now a graduate, will do the same thing.

McGill Encounters R.V.H. In Annual Football Classic

Soccermen Meet Ancient Rivals In Game Tonight

KICK-OFF AT 7.30

THE second night-game in the 1931 campaign of the McGill Intercollegiate Soccer Team will take place tonight when the Redmen clash with their old rivals the Royal Victoria Hospital. Kick-off is at 7.30 sharp and it is expected that a good crowd will be on hand.

Ever since the inauguration of soccer at McGill the annual game with the Royal Vic has been a feature of the season. Frequently old Redmen are to be found on the opposing squad and a friendly rivalry has always caused keen playing. Once again the R. V. H. have established an enviable summer reputation. In the Mid-Week league and their manager, last night, stated his complete confidence in the ability of his team to "take" the Redmen.

Substitutes Good.

Little daunted by their setback last Saturday the Seniors have been putting in a lot of work during the last few days and meet the R. V. H. in the very pink of condition and training. The team will be weakened by the non-playing of Crabtree and Ross but able substitutes have been found for these men. Crabtree and Ross are both interested in track this week and at any rate the former is still nursing a bad leg.

Last year the McGill squad suffered a 2-1 set-back from their tonight's opponents and they will be all out to avenge this defeat. The playing conditions will favour the home-team as the R. V. H. have never before performed under the arcs. They should get used to this very shortly however as all other teams have noticed little difficulty in acclimating themselves to the different conditions.

The teams will line up as follows:

McGILL	Goal	R. V. H.
Evelyn	R. B. Adams	Parry
Reece	L. B. Kelly	Sheard
Janikun	R. H. Collyer	Sullivan
Minnon	C. H. Timony	Mills

SOCCER GOSSIP

By Hat Trick

THE FIRST ELEVEN showed that they can play some very good football in their match against Sun Life last Wednesday night. Davies, skipper of the insurance men's Eleven, remarked that it was the finest McGill team he has seen for the past two or three years. And he knows his football. Consequently their showing against the City Junior Champions was a little disappointing.

Nevertheless, let it not be supposed that the Red team played poorly. Far from it. They gave as much as they took. Play was very even, throughout the whole match, and it was anybody's game. Both teams got plenty of breaks—C. N. R. merely got a few more of them.

ROSS is the hero of McGill soccerites. He has played spectacularly, and was easily the outstanding player in the Sun Life match as well as the one played on Saturday against C. N. R. In my opinion he is the best goalkeeper that McGill has had during the past five years, since Errol Amaron guarded the McGill nets.

The loss of some of last year's team through graduation has been compensated to a great extent by the infusion of some new blood from the ranks of the Reserves Eleven as well as from newcomers to the university. Ernie Carter, who played for the Reserves last year has shown decided improvement, and has earned a place on the Senior Eleven by his fine showing. He is a good winger, and does not waste his corner kicks.

JACK NOLAN is playing a much better game than he did last year. It is evident that the past season with Outremont did not do him any harm. He is one of the most valuable men on the team. Ewen, a freshman is a hard worker and promises to be an asset to the Senior outfit. Janikun, though rather unsteady on one of two occasions

AN ATHLETIC AUDIT

Perhaps the old-time enthusiasm is returning to McGill. Last night's freshman pep rally was the best of several years. Of interest to this department were the remarks of Sir Arthur Currie, "Shag" Shaughnessy, Bobby Bell, and Van Wagner, directing some well deserved adverse criticism at the sports page. Those remarks have been taken to heart, and the writers of this page, who at least give all the thought and energy they can to supporting McGill athletics, hope that others will profit to as great a degree. Such criticism is beneficial and welcome.

Chairman "Gordie" King referred to Coach Van Wagner as "the gloomy coach." It is doubtful if this title is deserved; certainly it should not be when Coach Wagner has one of the few squads in the University who really do keep strict training rules. No student coach, or competitor can be gloomy, win or lose. If he has truly given his best. May we predict that the McGill track squad will have success Friday. They deserve it.

Stanley Blundell, snapback of the intermediate football team, was paid a deserving tribute by Major Forbes at the smoker. Blundell is starting his eighth season with the intermediates, undoubtedly aiming at a performance that will win him a place on the senior squad. "The Major" said that Blundell would achieve his ambition. We hope so.

Last night there was talk of a shake-up in the senior football squad. Rumour has it that Doherty is to be moved back into his old stamping ground on the half-line with Hammond and Olker, while Krukowski would come in as regular quarter. Judging from "Shag's" talk at the smoker, however, it's not a shake-up that will make the difference needed between a winning and a losing team, but some fight, and some support from the students.

And speaking of fight, track enthusiasts are expecting to see a great battle in the intercollegiate three mile race on Friday afternoon when Goode of McGill will run against Bill Kibblewhite of Varsity. The latter represented Canada in the last Olympic games, and his time at the Varsity interfaculty track meet last Friday was about two seconds faster than that made by Goode on the same afternoon. Two seconds is not very much in a three mile race, and the ex-Cambridge runner may spring a surprise.

Harriers To Hold Initial Workout

Practices Will Be Held On Mondays, Wednesdays And Fridays

MANY GRADUATE

McGILL'S challenge for the Little Trophy, emblematic of the intercollegiate harrier championship, will this year be a strong one. This cup has not been held by McGill for 11 years, yet the last two titles have come very close to success. Varsity retained her hold on the silverware last year by one place only, and at that, one of the strongest members of the McGill team was out through crippled feet. Last year, also, the local harrier squad won the Dunlop annual road race, for the first time. The Dunlop Shield is emblematic of city supremacy in distance running, and has never been held for two years by any one team.

Graduation's Toll Taken

Graduation has taken its toll in the Harrier Club, Ian Balmer, a consistent point winner, and Bill Barclay have left. Ray Stote, last year's winner, may race in the Dunlop event, but will not be able to compete in the intercollegiate. Bob Calhoun, last year's captain, has deserted the track for football. However, it is hoped that the thought of five to six mile runs on Mount Royal in the keen Autumn air will be an incentive to draw him back.

Many new men are showing interest in the club. A strong addition will be Goode, interfaculty three mile winner last Friday. He will join the pack after the intercollegiate meet this Friday. Jacobs and Whitcombe may also do the same, and will be splendid additions to the squad.

Race at Varsity

Ben Lochead is captain of the McGill squad who will be in Toronto on November 7th, where the race is to be run. This is also the day of the McGill-Varsity football game in Toronto.

Any runners interested are urged on Saturday's match, is a steady enough player, getting plenty of distance to his kicks as he clears. He is still a little shaky, but a few more days together with the lads should correct that defect. Jones, a rather elongated member of the frosh, played a great game in the match under the floodlights against Sun Life last Wednesday night, but was not up to scratch on Saturday—he played rather nonchalantly, which failed to impress.

The interfaculty series will be under way very shortly, and the interfaculty representatives are urged to get after all the prospects in their respective faculties to turn. Everybody has a lot of fun in these matches, and these matches are also the means of uncovering some latent talent. It should be borne in mind that every man turning out for interfaculty competition, and for the Reserves, is a potential candidate for the First Eleven. It is interesting to note that Macdonald College has entered a team. It is bound to add a little spice to the whole program.

Local Oarsmen Show Up Well In Time Trial

Several Busses To Fill Tickets $1.00 At Buildings

CREW CHANGES

GREAT news comes from the Rowing Club. Latest reports to the Daily from the Lachine Canal tell us that time trials are being held regularly and that a splendid improvement has been shown in the time for the course. The McGill Eight has succeeded in lowering by 10 seconds the best trial of last year before the race. Although this does not equal the time for the actual race it nevertheless gives the red crew a week to better the record set last season by Toronto.

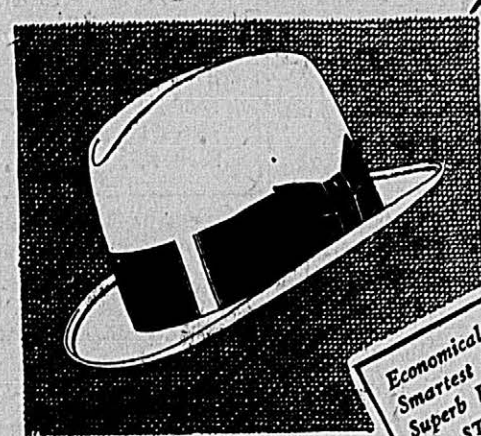

Tickets Out

The committee in charge of the annual classic wish to remind the students, and the graduates attending the reunion, that tickets are on sale at the Union and also at the various Buildings. These are selling at the reasonable price of $1.00 each and entitle the holder to a reserved seat in one of the busses that leave the Stadium immediately after the game with Varsity. Gifted Musicians Give Fine Recital

Delightful Programme Of Piano and Violin Music

Miss Iboylka Gyafas proved an excellent performer on the violin as well as a composer. Her recital in the Tudor Hall on Saturday afternoon together with Madame Olga Lieber, pianist, proved very enjoyable and of good musical interest.

Miss Gyafas played six numbers and an encore all with good technique, and drew from her instrument a rich tone that blended well with her effective mastery of glissando, the pleasant sliding from note to note. Her program opened with the Hindu Song from the opera Siska by Rimsky-Korsakov, and concluded with one of her own compositions, Hungarian Phantasies.

List Well Represented

The pianist, Mme. Lieber gave some very good interpretations of Liszt and Chopin, but was inclined to be rather heavy on the piano, and seemingly soulless when playing compositions by MacDowell and the Chant Polonais by Chopin-Liszt. This was fortunately atoned for in her subsequent renditions.

Next Saturday afternoon, will find Miss Alice Goodwin, pianist and Mr. Harold Gillingham tenor, appearing at the Tudor Hall.

Technical exhibits are being shown at the Biological Building and special attention has been given to medical achievements. The Montreal General Hospital, the Royal Victoria Hospital, and other hospitals in Montreal are cooperating to furnish addresses on many subjects. Dentistry also comes in for a large share of attention, and a special programme has been arranged for any of the Alumni who are interested.

During the next few days McGill will be honoured by the presence of many distinguished men. Mr. Rutherford, a graduate of some fifty years, has returned and announces that he finds the college vastly changed. Among those who will attend the banquet on Friday will be J. R. Douglass, McGill's oldest graduate. Numerous other prominent men will also be present to add further prestige to the festivities.

Addressed By Sir Arthur

"The advancement of learning", the purpose laid down by our founder, is still the main aim of the University announced Sir Arthur Currie. He asserted that McGill is trying to teach the students how to think, not what to think. It is their aim to help the Freshman to develop his talents and to turn out men who can look after themselves. Sir Arthur continued, "there are treasures here but you must dig for them. You cannot get through without working for it, and if you do not work you are not worthy of getting through." The Principal incidentally stated that he considered the "Daily" a very useful institution. In conclusion he expressed the desire that the partnership between staff and students should be kept sacred.

Charles Surde and his cheer leading staff were present and gave a little extra life to the meeting. After an oration by Edmund Collard, President of the Debating Union, the closing remarks were made by Alex. Edmison, President of the Students' Council. Course In Aviation Ground Work Starts

Capt. T. H. Finney Outlines Subjects In Lectures

In an introductory lecture to his course in aviation ground work, Capt. T. H. Finney last evening briefly outlined the subjects and purposes of the training.

The topics studied in this course, which is open to the public as well as the students of McGill, were enumerated as follows by the Captain: Air Pilotage and Navigation, Theory of Flight, Rigging of Aircraft, Meteorology, Engines of Aircraft.

Anyone interested in commercial or private flying will greatly benefit by this series of twenty lectures which continue weekly in the Engineering Building through the winter. The next lecture is scheduled for Tuesday, October 20th, at 7:30 in the evening.

tute a busy week for the Band, but they are well prepared with a program full of pep and dash. Bob Shaw, director has chosen his numbers from a well known group of marches and college songs. This morning they are heading the parade prior to Convocation, and then will be heard at the Smoker at the Black Watch Armory tonight. Saturday they will play at the Varsity-McGill game.

TAX EXEMPTIONS

By Ernest Pitt.

The City Council has now under consideration a proposal to grant an exemption of taxation for a period of three years on all residential constructions. This suggestion is open to study from many angles and the question arises "How will this affect proprietors who must continue to pay taxes and in addition must carry the burden of heavier construction costs due to their building when prices for both labor and material were much higher," says Mr. Ernest Pitt in his weekly review.

There is a grave danger that this may result in a glut on the market of apartments, flats, etc., which would be disastrous under present conditions. The proprietors with their heavier overhead and tax charges would not be able to compete in the matter of reduced rentals with the newer buildings, and this would cause serious hardship to all those who have already built properties and have been paying taxes and must continue to pay taxes on their buildings.

If this contemplated tax exemption were granted only to those who built a detached or semi-detached house with a garden, then something would be accomplished. It would be an inducement to our citizens to have homes instead of just living quarters. What a treat for the kiddies to have lots of ground in which the sunshine reaches into every room instead of living in tiers of flats or apartments, like the cliff dwellers of old. This latter is not conducive to good health and children brought up under these conditions start life with a handicap, and to any who may doubt the truth of this statement, it is a fact that we cannot build hospitals fast enough to take care of the cases waiting for admission.

Mr. Pitt says there are thousands of citizens who have owned lots for years but have not been able to build upon them and the City also owns thousands of lots purchased for taxes. What a pity to see all these open spaces idle while people are crowding into practically uninhabitable quarters in the congested sections of the city. If tax exemption for three years will induce the building of houses or bungalows on these lots where growing families can be brought up with ample room inside and gardens to further reduce the cost of living then by all means take the necessary steps to bring this measure into effect, but a general tax exemption for all residential construction can not, in his estimation, be considered a good thing for the real estate business.

A very good criterion by which to judge any industry or business is its ability to weather panics and depressions like the present one. Judging by the few sheriff's sales, one would say that the real estate business is holding on better than any other, but general tax exemption will have a tendency to make the supply greater than the demand, which is a condition which must be guarded against in any line of business.

Mr. Pitt points out that during the war a number of "Housing Companies" were launched with the idea of endeavouring to overcome the house shortage and assist people to own their own homes. Even with the co-operation of the Government in the form of loans, the result was not satisfactory and many municipalities lost hundreds of thousands of dollars through this venture. But for many reasons individual home ownership does not come under the same category. The building of a home for himself invests a man with certain responsibility and importance that makes it a pleasure to carry on, even when the going is hard. The few difficulties he may encounter are more than made up for by the comforts he enjoys and the feeling of solidity which comes with being a proprietor. Consequently, tax exemption for three years to those building a detached house or a bungalow, would be a boon to thousands, especially the working man.

Real Teachers Need Not Worry About Holding Jobs

By Exchange Service.

Comparatively few "real" teachers are walking the streets during the present hard times, finds Warren E. Benson, director of the University Placement Bureau, in a survey he has been making on conditions in the teacher placement market. Overcrowded conditions in the teaching field are due, he feels, to the presence of persons who, trained for other occupations, and now jobless, have turned to this avenue as a way out.

"Great numbers of unemployed business men and women have taken refuge in the teaching field," stated Mr. Benson. "Though this increases the supply of teachers, it does not affect the real teacher. The wise superintendent chooses the teacher who is qualified, and who will remain with him through good times and bad."

The call for properly trained and experienced teachers is greater than ever, according to the director's report.

In the two months of its existence, 137 calls for teachers have been received by the bureau. Of these 80 have come from New England States, with the remainder scattered among 31 outside states, three Canadian provinces, Porto Rico and the Philippines.

"The inexperienced candidate is feeling the pressure in the teaching market," Mr. Benson finds. "The preference is given to older persons, and for this reason the young college graduate finds it hard to get a start."

In the future the director hopes to remedy this situation by meeting and talking with undergraduate students who plan to become teachers, and aiding them in shaping their courses to their future needs. Such conferences, he feels, will assist schools and colleges to get "hand picked" candidates for positions, and will save "disappointment and unhappiness occasioned by a young graduate getting into the wrong job."

C.O.T.C. Parade Called For Tonight

Contingent Will Meet Outside Orderly Room To Drill

Tonight the first parade for the year of the McGill C.O.T.C. will be held under the new officer commanding E. B. Q. Buchanan. According to orders posted yesterday the contingent will parade at 8 o'clock outside the orderly room, 3480 University St.

At the parade this evening recruits will be present and it is expected that the new men will benefit greatly by drilling with the old-timers who have enlisted again this year with the corps. On parade tonight all ranks except recruits will be in Khaki and it is hoped that they too will shortly be in regulation uniforms.

Recruit parades have been in progress for the past week now and the men who have joined the corps this year are declared to be turning into model cadets. These new-comers to the unit will shortly be passed into their respective companies when they will be permitted to draw uniforms and equipment from the quartermasters' stores.

Every man is a hero in his own home until the company leaves.

while in the City. Through the courtesy of the E.J. Maxwell Lumber Co., both Clubs are keeping their shells at the yards of the above mentioned Company. This is most convenient for the crews as it is only a few yards from the start of the race.

Coach Urbain Molmans has been worrying a great deal about his protégés of late and has been doing a little experimenting. The local oarsmen seem to be showing up well under the system and already marked improvement has been shown. According to the latest news the crew will be seated as follows when the two boats line up next Saturday afternoon: — Lorne Gales, stroke; Harold Elliott, No. 2; Oederic Smyth, No. 3; Murray McInlyre, No. 4; Jack Butler, No. 5; Moe Blumer, No. 6; Mac Blakely, No. 7; Hugh McQuais, No. 8; and Harold Campbell, Cox.

new Pagan learning, and when in about 1300 the complete works of Aristotle were discovered, they had a revolutionary effect on the whole Mediaeval world. St. Thomas Aquinas harmonized the works of Aristotle with the Theology of the Christian Church.

Many people today think that most of the Mediaeval schools were taught by the clergy, but this was not so. Most schoolmasters belonged to the Collegium, which was a community of canons or fellows attached to a church they were not monks, but free men.
